ATLANTA SHIPPING A GOOD TONNAGE

PROMISE OF A PROFITABLE OUTPUT FROM STOPES AT GREAT DEPTH

Nineteen carloads of ore, averaging in quantity about 50 tons to the car, have been shipped from the Atlanta mine since Nov. 1, the product averaging in value from $22 to $25 per ton. This ore is shipped to the local sampler of the Western Ore Purchasing company, at Columbia, where it is sampled, and thence to smelters in Utah for treatment, and the metallic content of greatest value in this ore is copper, says the Tribune.

Manager A. I. O'Arcy, who has returned from a trip of a few days to an outside district, states that the Atlanta mine has been showing marked improvement and conditions are now highly satisfactory, particularly on the 1580-foot level, where the greater part of the shipping ore is being mined. Development work continues at a number of points in the mine and is serving to block out a large tonnage of copper-bearing ore that will be treated eventually by flotation.

The recent storm, which caused the partial flooding of the station on the 1750-foot level, delayed operations in the mine for only a few hours and did not affect production. It is now apparent that a large tonnage of shipping ore can be extracted from the stopes on the 1580 and 1620-foot levels.

Nothing but an American. When I look back on the shifting scenes of my life, if I am not that altogether deplorable creature, a man without a country, I am, when it comes to pull and prestige, almost equally bereft, as I am a man without a state. I was born in Indiana, I grew up in Illinois, I was educated in Rhode Island, and it is no blame to that scholarly community that I know so little. I learned my law in Springfield and my politics in Washington, my diplomacy in Europe, Asia and Africa. I have a farm in New Hampshire and a desk room in the District of Columbia.

When I look to the springs from which my blood descends the first ancestor I ever heard of was a Scotchman who was half English and a German woman who was half French. Of my immediate progenitors my mother was from New England and my father was from the south. In this bewilderingment of origin and experience I can only put on an aspect of deep humility in my gathering of favorite sons and confess that I am nothing but an American.—From "The Life and Letters of John Hay" in Harper's Magazine.

Edison's Incandescent. According to a friend, Thomas A. Edison is of the opinion that it was anger that first turned him toward inventing the incandescent light, reports the Newark News. How it happened is related by the friend, who says: "That was, of course, in the early days, and Mr. Edison was then quite the inventor that one reads of—poor, enthusiastic, never sleeping. He lived in a small house, innocent of anything approaching a laboratory. Scientific devices were in every room, and all the money went for experiments. Then one day came the crisis in the guise of the collector for the gas company. He had been in the house of ten, but Edison, hardly heeding his calls, had waved him away, saying, 'Don't bother me!' "On this last call the collector's instructions were peremptory. He must turn off the gas. He did so, and that act started Edison on the road to the incandescent light."

Patti and Her Partners. The novel manner in which the famous prima donna Patti on one occasion chose her partners at a dance is related by Mr. Leslie Ward in his reminiscences. Mr. Ward went to a certain dance at Lancaster Gate. "Patti," he says, "was sitting in the middle of the room looking angelic and surrounded by a host of admiring men. We were each given a miniature bugle. Patti had one also, on which she sounded a note, and whoever repeated it exactly was to gain her as a partner in the dance. The men advanced in turn. Some blew too high and others too low until one and all gave up in disgust. At last my turn came. I was trembling with eagerness and excitement and determined to dance with Patti or die. I hit the note and gained my waits, and the applause was great as I carried off my prize."

TRAIN NO. 24 IS STUCK IN SNOWBANK

TONOPAH PEOPLE ABOARD, BUT NO FEAR THEY WILL SUFFER DISCOMFORT

Train No. 24 is marooned near the summit of the Sierras in about fifteen feet of snow, which is drifting into the cuts as fast as the rotaries can throw it out. Relief is approaching from both directions, but it will be some hours before the train can move. There are a number of Tonopah people aboard, including Mrs. Robert M. Brown and Miss Anne Brown. It is not thought that they will suffer any inconvenience except from the delay, as the cars are well heated.

No. 24 came in this morning as a stub train, made up at Reno, with only a few passengers aboard. Coast mail and express will be 24 hours late.

WHITE CAPS SHAFT WILL BE DEEPENED

IN A WEEK HEAVY OPERATIONS WILL BE UNDER WAY ON THIS PROPERTY

John A. Cole, the new superintendent of the reorganized White Caps Mining company, went out to Manhattan yesterday to take charge of the work, which will be well under way in about a week. The mill is now nearly in readiness to treat the ore. The big dump that hitherto had proven rebellious, despite its richness, will be worked in conjunction with the ore that is to be hoisted.

While actual production will be steadily maintained, the company will also sink an additional hundred feet and crosscut to the ledge. It is expected that all departments of the company will be in full swing sometime in February.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

On account of no through train arriving today, on which the day's program is received each morning, we will be unable to show the Blue Ribbon feature, "The Turn of the Road" as advertised for today, but will show this picture at a later date. We are very sorry to disappoint our patrons, but it was a circumstance over which we had no control. We are reasonably assured however, by the railroad company that the train will be in tomorrow and that we will be able to go on with our program. We will show today, in place of the delayed picture, a four-reel Famous Players production, "Leah Kleschna," featuring Carlotta Nollson, the distinguished American actress, in a story of a woman's regeneration. Also, a Ford Weekly, with many interesting scenes of happenings from different parts of the country.

Tomorrow a Pathe comedy, and a Paramount production, "Brother Officers," a story of British army and society life, convincingly portrayed by a British company, this picture being featured at the Strand Theater, New York, a few months ago. Appearing in the picture are scenes at the race-track, full of life and color, the fight with Afghan tribesmen in India and the life in English barracks and manor houses.
